Black Studies in the 1980's:
The Challenge of Blackness Revisited
a one day symposium
Thursday, October 1, 1981

In 1969, Black scholars came to IBW to discuss goals and vision for the new area of Black Studies. Now in 1981, IBW assembles Black scholars in a public forum to assess this decade of Black Studies, to examine how the vision of the past is reflected in the curricula of the present, and to explore the challenges of the future.

St. Clair Drake

Professor Emeritus of Sociology and Anthropology and former chairman of African and Afro-American Studies at Stanford University. Author of Black Metropolis, The Redemption of Africa and Black Religion, and a forthcoming book of essays Black Folks Here and There: Essays in Comparative Sociology and Anthropology.

Vincent Harding

Professor of History and Theology, Iliff School of Theology, University of Denver. Author of The Other American Revolution and the forthcoming multi-volumed Black history There is a River and numerous articles on Black history, Black religion, Black studies and the student movement of the 1960's.

Barbara Jones

Professor and Chair of the Department of Business Administration and Economics at Clark College. Author of "The Economic Bases of the Black Predicament" and other articles in labor economics.

William Strickland

IBW Senior Fellow and Associate Professor of Political History at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Publications include "The Rise and Fall of Black Political Culture" and "Cuba in Angola: The Crisis of Pan-African Ideology".

Michael Witter
